PADRE PAUL'S PONDERINGS

Love Takes Many Forms

Millions of people will be spending money this upcoming week on Valentine's Day. (Even though it was changed to Saint Cyril and Methodius Day, Hallmark doesn't have too many cards for that day). While in particular, for couples, the day may entail chocolates, roses, or a date night and celebrate the romantic side of love, as we all know love takes many forms. It's worth pondering how we live out these various forms of love.

It probably won't shock you that this space will not be used for much advice with respect to dating and relationships, though I will offer this up to any gentlemen reading: if you are going out on Valentine's Day, it's probably not best to ask your significant other to pay the bill or "go Dutch."

Now, let's move on.

What I would like to write about briefly are the different components of love, in that the term has so many meanings and ways to think about it, but each are important.

Here's what comes to mind for me when I think about love.

Sacrifice. We refer to Mass as a sacrifice because it makes present again the sacrifice of Jesus for us on Good Friday, and we are reminded of God's love for us every time we look at the crucifix. We know very little about the real Saint Valentine which is why he is no longer on the official calendar of saints, but most accounts say he was martyred for holding to his faith in the third century, and did acts of love for others. Sacrifice has to be a part of every loving relationship. Parents sacrifice time and money to raise their children. We sacrifice ego when we apologize and admit we were wrong. Children sacrifice time to help their parents and their family. People sacrifice of their time and talent and treasure to help their parish or a charity. The list goes on and on. When we gaze upon Jesus in the Eucharist or look at the cross, we should think "how far am I willing to go for those who need me?"

Receiving. It might sound obvious, but love also needs to be received. Ideally for us, that's the first thing that happens when we enter the world; we are placed into the arms of a loving mother, and when we are baptized, we celebrate how God's love is always with us. It is worth asking how do we receive love. Sometimes when we weren't given the right understanding of love in our upbringing or went through difficult life experiences with family or the Church, we might not receive love as we should. Receiving love means being open to God's love and mercy and forgiving ourselves and reaching out to God when we fall. It means loving yourself. It means accepting that love is not a privilege but a right, and others who are in our lives should also be giving it to us. This means if a spouse isn't loving as they should, or a parent is cold or cruel, we have a right to speak up when a relationship isn't as it should be. Sadly some people just aren't aware or chose to be aware of how they treat others, sometimes within a family, or among friends or at a workplace. We shouldn't feel guilty when we speak up if someone isn't treating us as they should.

Forgiving. In every relationship, we let others down be it our spouses, our kids, or our parents. We are human. That is why we ask for forgiveness from God, but forgiving others can be tough. When we work towards forgiveness it can do so much to remind a person they are loved, and it also helps us to move forward and takes a burden off of our shoulders. Forgiveness though needs to be authentic; it takes time and sometimes a starting point is to acknowledge the reality of being wronged, then pray to God for help, then start praying for the other person. We can talk to others about a situation too, and hopefully get to a point where we can truly forgive others who trespass against us by reaching out to them as the last step. And remember the point with receiving love: forgiving also means forgiving ourselves. We are human and inevitably make mistakes. Don't forget the many good things you do too!

"Tough Love" Last week I spoke on how when we truly love others we sometimes have to challenge them. What do you do when you see a Little League parent making a scene and yelling at a coach or umpire? What do you do when you are aware of a drinking problem in the family? What do you do when someone you know stops going to Mass? How do you handle "family secrets?" The human instinct with sin can be to run from it or to pretend that it's not there, but we have to confront these things out of love to truly help people.

Tolerating Differences. As I've also recently preached on, it seems these days people can become less tolerant than ever. Why is that though? I have very strong religious and political beliefs but one of my closest friends is my exact opposite, yet we've maintained a great friendship, even if he is wrong and I am right (just seeing if you are still reading). We have to accept the fact that we are a diverse world. And if we love all people, we will make an effort to pray for all, and to not quickly condemn based on politics or other differences. You certainly don't have to change your mind or agree, but we do have to coexist together and perhaps starting from what we share in common and just trying to calm down when we encounter those with whom we have strong differences can improve our relationships with each others. And also, consider arguing - a good thing - rather than shouting - a bad thing. Arguing helps us to understand the other person, the issue we are arguing about more deeply, and also helps them to understand us better.

Catechesis. Jesus sends us as disciples into the world. But how catechized are we? What I mean by this is do we know our faith? Can we articulate it? We show our love for God by learning all He has to teach us; this is why we study the Bible and also learn our faith as we have understood it through the assistance of the Church which is there to shepherd us. Its important to not just memorize prayers, but to know the meaning behind those prayers, and why we believe what we do. But it also helps us to evangelize the world, and this is more important than ever in a world which has so much relativism in it, meaning one belief is as good as another which is what a lot of people adhere to as a mindset. Getting to heaven is a pretty big deal - and it should be our primary focus in life, to become a saint. Salvation of souls is something we all partake in, and knowing and articulating our faith to others is a big component of love.

Some might think of love in a special way on Valentine's Day, and it's a wonderful day to celebrate love. But love for the Christian is a way of life; and just as every couple quickly realizes there's a lot more to a relationship than dating, but that it's about making one another better through sacrifice, forgiveness and challenging each other, the same is true for us all. God wants us to grow in our understanding of Him and gives us a commandment - love one another as I have loved you. Let's think about that not just on February 14th, but every day of the year.

Have a blessed week! Fr. Paul

Youth Mission Trip – Spiritual Adoration with Jesus Christ

Our Youth Mission Trip participants will be spending 2 hours in Adoration with Jesus Christ on Friday, March 1st from 3-5pm.

Bruce Hoffmann will offer a brief tutorial in the Gather Area at 3pm & 4pm to explain Adoration. So if you haven't been before or haven't been for awhile, come for a refresher. All are welcome to join us as we pray for our parish, focusing on our youth and new youth minister. Hope to see you there.

After Masses on February 17th & 18th, please stop by to meet some of our young people who have had the opportunity to go on a mission trip in the past and hear about where they are going this year. We will have a sealed intention box that we will be praying over during our adoration on March 1st. You may add your own intentions as well. This year's Catholic sponsored mission trip costs $1000 per person. If you have the inclination to support this mission financially, you may also do so at this time. Any amount is appreciated. We would like to be able to subsidize students who would not normally be able to take advantage of this opportunity.

Your support is appreciated, whether it is by: attending Adoration on March 1st, putting an intention in the prayer intention box, and/or financially, but most of all by keeping the youth of our parish and our soon to be new Youth Minister at the forefront of your prayers.

Let's show our Youth how important they are to us.
