PALM SUNDAY OF THE PASSION OF THE LORD

So they brought the colt to Jesus and put their cloaks over it. And he sat on it. Many people spread their cloaks on the road, and others spread leafy branches that they had cut from the fields. - Mk 11:7-8

PADRE PAUL'S PONDERINGS

Holy Week: The Greatest Love Story Ever Told

Last year when the pandemic began, and the church was forced to be closed to people due to the executive order, it was quite surreal to have Holy Week with just a couple of people in the sanctuary. There were palms but no one to sing "Hosanna"; there were no feet to wash on Holy Thursday; there was no one to process to the Cross on Good Friday; and no candles to light from the Easter Fire on Holy Saturday. Come Easter, the lilies were there, but not the people.

This year, things appear to be getting somewhat better. We have not crossed the goal line yet with the pandemic, but as more are able to get vaccines, and we realize we may have to coexist with Covid as we do with so many other diseases and viruses in our world, we are seeing more things opening up. Our churches have been open since late last May, and I am hopeful as this year goes on we'll hear the choir again, have water in the fonts, and have the hymnals return to the pews.

With that, it's been great to see more people return to the pews as well. Holy Week is a great time to do just that, and hopefully you might be able to come to some or all of our Masses and liturgies this week.

Every year when we get to Holy Week, it builds my faith as a Christian and as a priest. As the title suggests, it's the holiest time of the year. And I look forward to it so much. The celebration of the three days of the Last Supper, Passion and Resurrection of the Lord reminds me anew of God's love for me, and I'm inspired as I see so many people turn out to have their faith strengthened too and to grow closer to God. Last year I know we all felt so much pain not being able to worship together in person. This week gives us a sacred time to think about how far our God goes to show us how much He loves us.

My hope is that as we begin this week, you too will find it a way to grow closer to God. Maybe you come every week, or have been away from Mass for a while and are just returning. Maybe you have felt really close to God this Lent, or maybe you are stuck in a rut and go to Mass but are in "auto pilot" mode, with God lumped in with the other things in a busy schedule. Use this week to re-connect with God, and to deepen your relationship with Him.

What I've found is that each of the liturgies can have a different way of helping me to grow in my faith. And I hope you'd think about that as you prepare to celebrate this most solemn week on our calendar.

We begin at Palm Sunday, and what strikes me with the day is the shallowness of people. Many of us been burned by fake people in our lives; but let's be honest, sometimes we have done that to other people. You have the crowds who say "Hosanna!" but then drop the palms and walk away quickly when they realize Jesus is not going to be a political leader. You have jealousy from the Sanhedrin and those who see Jesus as a threat to their power. You have the cowardice of Pilate who knows the right thing to do but doesn't do it, even when God is literally staring him in the face. You have Judas pretending to be loyal but betraying his friend with a kiss. And Peter and the others running away showing cowardice too. This liturgy challenges us in a way to think about how serious we are about the word "love" (more on that on Good Friday). Do we really mean that word when we say it, or only when it is convenient? As I've mentioned in some recent homilies, are we willing to suffer for the faith, and to speak up for what we believe in in the face of a hostile world? Palm Sunday gives us the opportunity to think about how serious we are about love, being a disciple, & following Jesus.

Holy Thursday gives us a lot to think about too. There is the institution of the Eucharist, God's gift of love to us when we celebrate at every Mass. There is the institution of the priesthood too, and I think about my ordination and how I live out my vocation. But what I've always been struck by is the washing of the feet. We do this as a reminder of what Jesus did, but what I love with this ritual is that it's a visible thing we do at liturgy to basically say "OK people, if you are going to receive Jesus in Holy Communion, and say I am a Christian, here's what it means." Last summer when I went for the first time after a few months to a senior living center, I was struck by the nurses and staff who were working so hard there to keep spirits up. There was a sign in one room that said "please do not leave for your safety" and my heart sunk; these people were essentially prisoners. But day in and day out the nurses and staff there were bringing hope at the height of the pandemic. This was truly the Gospel in action.

Remember the words of Pope Francis, that the Church is a field hospital. So as we see the feet being washed, it helps us think about who's feet we need to wash. Who might be hurting in our lives; who we might be neglecting; or who might be hurting. Those. nurses and so many like them have done so much this past year. But all of us can reach out to help those in need. Jesus even washes the feet of Judas. Some people in our lives our easily lovable. Some people are more challenging. We can't just serve or love when it is convenient - what Jesus does is give us a mandate to do for others what He the master has done for the 12. That's something that we need to live out daily.

Good Friday is a unique liturgy in that it's the only day of the year with no Mass. The altar is bare; the church is dimly lit. Two things really hit me on Good Friday. The first is the ugliness of sin. It's all there in the Passion; cowardice, betrayal, greed, pride, you name it. And as we think of the Passion, all of us can on the inside silently nod and think "yes, I too have done these things" because all of us are culpable. Just as the soldiers who drove the nails into our Lord, our sins do the same. But all of this is overcome by the Passover Lamb, Jesus. What strikes me with Good Friday is yes, you have the sin but that's overcome through the incredible love and mercy of Jesus. Think of all that power He had; the power to bring down fire and brimstone; to get revenge; to show everyone who He was. But He surrenders to the will of the Father; and He reveals for us love on the Tree of Life, the Cross. Even with respect to Judas, Jesus still loved him. Yes, we are sinners and do evil things. We are like those who drop the palms and walk away. But we are loved - and this is how far God goes for us out of love. Think about that on Good Friday as we gaze on the cross and reflect on the Passion again. Turn your sins and struggles over to the one who is love itself and let that liberate you.

Lastly, Holy Saturday. The light dispelling the darkness, the triumph of life over death, of love over sin. If you have never been to the Easter Vigil, do consider going. Yes, it's longer, but parking is a lot easier, and you can sleep in a bit on Easter, go find the Easter basket, and then go off to your ham dinner. What I love with this liturgy is how we hear of salvation history; of God time and time again coming to our rescue. It's so amazing to see the light dispelling the darkness as the Easter fire is lit; the new Easter candle blessed and all the candles being lit from that candle. (And for me as I said, not having that was so hard last year - what a joy it will be to see those candles back this year. That being said though the people were not there last year, I know God is far more powerful

Good Friday, Holy Land Collection

We are "back on track" this year for the Holy Land collection on Good Friday. The wars, unrest and instability continue to be especially hard on Christians. Also, the Holy Land is struggling with the effects of the COVID epidemic. In these times of crisis, Pope Francis is encouraging us all to support the Pontifical Good Friday Collection which helps the Franciscan community minister in parishes, sustain Catholic education, maintain Holy Land shrines and provide medical and housing assistance for the poor and elderly. A percentage of the collection will also provide aid to our partner Archdiocese of Damascus, Syria, as they struggle to rebuild from years of conflict. When you contribute to the Good Friday Collection, you become an instrument of peace and join with Catholics around the world in solidarity with the Church in the Holy Land. Please be as generous as you are able! Envelope can be found in your weekly packets.

VOCATION VIEW

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.
Blessed is she who gives her life in the name of the Lord.
Blessed are they who live their united life in the name of the Lord.

I than any virus). We are reminded of God having the last word over death and of our redemption. It fills one with hope, and when you hear the Exultet chanted, and the Litany of Saints prayed for the newly baptized and confirmed, you are overwhelmed with this sense of God's love and the power of the love that exists in the body of believers, the Church. The sight of all the candles lit and celebrating baptism and confirmation with the RCIA candidates and catechumens is also so meaningful, because it reminds me of how we are a community and support one another, but also of the fire of faith that burns in the souls of the people of God. The candles are only lit for the first part of the liturgy, but inside us all is the fire of Christ's love, something I see time and time again as a priest in the great people I've come to know.

So much more could be said about Holy Week, but I'll just close with this: consider going to the liturgies each night. They are not obligatory holy days, but as you experience the liturgies this week, my guess is that you truly will grow in your faith and be touched by the love and grace of God as you hear the greatest love story ever told. And if you can't make it each day, or are still concerned about returning waiting for more shots, try to watch online and find some extra time for prayer, and just remember one thing: God loves you, and even if you were the only person God ever made, He still would have done all of this for you.

Have a blessed Holy Week! Looking forward to seeing you again this year. ~Fr. Paul
